Chapter 1 - October Lookbook Promo

Meet Joyce, the Undead Knitter

(eerie music) - Good evening boys and ghouls, it is I, Joyce the undead knitter. When I was alive, I was a huge fan of Creativebug and now I spend all my time with creative bugs, like spiders who knit their webs. Anyway, because I was such a big fan, Creativebug said that I could introduce the October classes, which are frightfully good this month. First off is Inktober with Lisa Congdon, a daily challenge where we will draw or paint something using inks every day this month. Let's take a look. Ooh I love that ink, it looks like blood. Oh, I forgot you were still there. The next class we have for you comes from Crypt Crafts, it's a paper wallet designed by Arounna Khounnoraj and the only thing scary about that is my credit score. (laughs) This wallet is simple to make and is very beautiful, but is super scary when you open it up and see no money inside! Alright any other jokes we can make? I'm sure we can make more wallet jokes. Once you're finished with that wallet, you can stuff it full of dead presidents. While you were watching that video, I was making progress on my sweater for my friend Leanna. She was jealous of the one I had made for Courtney. Next up we have a class from Camilla d'Errico, Manga Drawing, Clothing. Those outfits are so cute it's spooky. Next up we have two knitting classes from Faith Hale, who I have gotta say has great hair. It's a knitted hat and some slippers. It's very simple, if you've never knit anything before, you'll be able to knit these, and you won't have to worry about puncturing your skull. I hope you don't mind that I changed into something a little bit more comfortable. Lastly, we have a selection of classes for you that honor my favorite holiday, Halloween, obviously. We have Cosplay Costumes with Michele Muska, love her, we've got Cricut cupcake toppers taught by Courtney Cerruti, Halloween trick or treat bags by Rad Megan, Halloween face painting, not that I would ever paint my face, why mess with perfection? And this adorable crocheted cat from Twinkie Chan, which to be honest, makes me a little hungry. If you are what you eat, I'd be a cat. (explosion booms) Meow. (spooky music)
